NUMBER 29

WHITNEY BANDITS MURDER MARSHAL

Another Death Added to the Long List of Outrages by the Notorious Outlaw Brothers.

ATTEMPT TO BLACKMAIL BANKER

Determined Men Headed by Special Agent Jones Resolve to Kill or Capture Gang.

Cokeville, Wyo., June 24.—One more death is charged up to the heavy score of the Whitney gang of outlaws. Marshal Dan Hansen of this place is the latest victim of the notorious bandits. Hansen was fatally shot because, in the performance of his duty, he tried to thwart the desperadoes in their attempt at blackmail.

Bert Dalton is in jail here, held on the charge of being one of the perpetrators of the attack on Hansen. Dalton confessed that he was an associate of the Whitneys and that he held their horses while they attacked the marshal. The jail where Dalton is confined is being guarded to prevent the release of the prisoner by the Whitneys.

Last week Peter Olson, banker, found pasted upon his gatepost a paper which demanded $1500. Failure to comply with the demand, the paper stated, would result in the swift death of Olson and his entire family. The paper was signed "Hugh and Charley Whitney."

It was specified in the notice that the money was to be deposited on Thursday night at a spot near the Bear river bridge southwest of town, designated by a red lantern.

Olson notified Marshal Hansen and turned over to him the notice of blackmail. Hansen obtained a horse from the shearing corrals and started for the place indicated in the bandits' note. Nearing the spot, about 10 o'clock Thursday night, Hansen saw, in the darkness, a man creeping on all fours.

"Who are you?" demanded Hansen.

The reply to this was a shot. The bullet struck Hansen in the side.

With the report of the shot, Hansen's horse wheeled about, and a second bullet pierced the animal's heart, killing it instantly.

Hansen also fired a shot in the direction of whence his assailant's shots had come.

The bullet which struck Hansen entered between the sixth and seventh ribs, ranging upward and to the left.

Two hours later Hansen was discovered in the road by an automobile party. Among the occupants of the automobile was Sheriff Ward of Uinta county. The sheriff hastened to town, where he notified the inhabitants. A carriage was obtained and Hansen was brought to Cokeville.

Hansen died at 3:41 o'clock Friday afternoon. On his deathbed, Hansen partially identified Bert Dalton as his assailant.

Dalton was arrested and, over the dead body of Hansen, confessed to the extent that it was the Whitney brothers who attacked Hansen. Dalton said he was holding the Whitney's horses for them in the eastern part of the city. Dalton said he was to receive one-third of the money extorted from Olson.

Daniel C. Hansen was 42 years of age, and was formerly a resident of Tooele and Salt Lake City. He was engaged in the cattle business in Wyoming. He is survived by a widow and baby at Cokeville, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hansen of Tooele, and by two brothers, F. E. Hansen of Salt Lake City and Edwin Hansen, who lives in Wyoming. The body will be taken to Tooele for burial.

Cokeville, Wyo., June 25.—A fight between some of the greatest gun fighters in the west seems probable in this vicinity soon, as Joseph Jones, special agent for the Oregon Short Line at Rigby, Idaho, is expected to organize a strong posse at Cokeville against the Whitney brothers, suspected of the murder of Marshal Dan Hansen last week. The Whitney brothers are famous gunmen.

The Whitney brothers are hidden in the mountains hereabouts, and there is only a small body of officers now looking for them. Most of the officers here are guarding the jail in order to prevent a possible attempt to rescue Dalton.

Special Agent Jones has had several experiences with the Whitneys, and has sworn to capture or kill them because of the train robberies and other crimes in which they have participated.

Notice From Watermaster.

Some time ago the City Treasurer was instructed to sell water rights for lawn purposes. All rights were limited to two hours per day, from 6 until 8 o'clock p. m. A few persons have been abusing this right and using the water almost every hour of the day. They have no respect for the Mayor's proclamation, or the people who live in the upper part of the city; their lawns are their first consideration.

The water from the springs is running low and we are compelled to limit the use of water for sprinkling in all of that part of the city north of First South street, to one hour per day, from 7 until 8 o'clock p. m., and in that portion of the city south of First South street, from 6 to 8 o'clock p. m.

In the future I shall watch those who steal water and if any are caught using water at any other time during the day, they will be arrested and punished. This rule will be effective beginning Saturday, June 29th.

SAM. F. LEIGH,
Watermaster.

June is the month of weddings; but they occur in other months as well. The Record is always prepared to furnish wedding invitations of the ultra-fashionable sort.

HOG ATTACKS SLEEPING BABY

At Union, Salt Lake county, last week, a shocking fate almost overtook a five-months-old baby. The child was saved from being devoured by a hog only by the timely arrival of its father. Before the vicious animal could be driven off it had severely bitten the baby's lips, one of its ears and one of its hands. The victim of the attack was the child of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Knudson. The baby was left in the care of its father, while the mother went to the store to make some purchases. The baby was placed in a go-cart in the shade of a tree, where it lay peacefully sleeping. Knudson went to attend to some work in connection with his irrigating ditches.

While engaged in that work Knudson heard his baby scream. Rushing with all possible speed to the place where the baby was, Knudson saw that a gigantic hog, which had been running at large, had overturned the baby's go-cart and was ferociously attacking the child. Knudson succeeded in driving off the hog, but not without a show of fight on the beast's part.

As quickly as possible the baby was taken to Murray, where its injuries were dressed by Dr. W. H. Rothwell. Dr. Rothwell hopes to be able to save the child.

BISHOP MATHESON TO OPEN JEWELRY STORE

Definite announcement is made that Bishop A. G. Matheson will begin at once the construction of a building to be occupied as a jewelry store.

The building will be located on the old titling office lot on North Main street. All arrangements have been completed and workmen will soon be engaged in its erection, which will be pushed forward as fast as possible.

The announcement that Bishop Matheson will enter the business field in earnest will be welcome news to his hundreds of friends, and a cause for appreciation by every progressive citizen. We believe there is an ample field for such another enterprise, and hope for him abundant success.

Alonzo Higbee, residing west of the city, was seized with an attack of appendicitis Saturday morning and by Monday afternoon was in such a serious condition as to make an operation immediately necessary. He was removed to the Southern Utah hospital where Dr. C. M. Clark performed the operation. Such was the condition of the appendix that the doctor stated that if the operation had been deferred another twelve hours the result would have been doubtful. The patient rallied quickly from the anesthetic and is progressing nicely toward recovery.

Notice to Hunters.

All persons on the range, having in their possession hunting outfits, should be provided with hunting licenses in order to avoid arrest and prosecution.

TAFT RECEIVES NOMINATION

Is Chosen by the Republican National Convention on the First Ballot. Sherman for Vice President.

MANY DELEGATES REFUSE TO VOTE

Leading Supporters of the Colonel In Convention Will Not Bolt the Ticket.

President William Howard Taft is the candidate of the Republican party for president. He was nominated on the first ballot shortly before 10:30 Saturday night, at the close of one of the most exciting and turbulent conventions ever witnessed.

When Ex-President Roosevelt realized that he was defeated and that to have his name presented to the convention would be useless, he requested his followers in the convention to refrain from voting. A majority of the delegates did as requested but a number cast their votes, some for other candidates and some for the colonel.

The first and only ballot for president was as follows: Taft, 551; Roosevelt, 107; LaFollette, 41; Cummins, 17; Hughes, 2; absent, 2; present and not voting, 348.

Likewise, the first was the only ballot for vice-president, and resulted as follows: Sherman, 597; Borah, 21; Merriman, 20; Hadley, 14; Beveridge, 2; Gillette, 1; absent, 71; not voting, 352.

Within an hour after the regular convention had nominated Taft, a rump convention of Roosevelt supporters convened in Orchestra hall and nominated the colonel for president and made tentative plans for a new party to be called the National Progressive Party.

A bolt by Roosevelt and his supporters had been threatened throughout the convention should Taft be nominated, and the action taken was no surprise. However, the weakness of the movement was the cause of much surprise and comment. Almost every prominent Republican who had been actively engaged in leading the fight for Roosevelt, refused to join the bolting element.

Of the leaders who supported the colonel, Governor Hadley of Missouri, Governor Deneen of Illinois and Senator Borah of Idaho, have declared their intention to support the regular Republican ticket. Governor Hadley says the platform is the most progressive ever adopted by the party and one which all Republicans may consistently support.

The fact remains, however, in spite of the declarations of these former ardent friends of Roosevelt, that the Republican party is in serious straits, being more nearly demoralized than at any time since the civil war. If the Democrats put forth the right man, they will stand an excellent show to elect their ticket; in fact the prospects for Democratic success were never brighter than at the present time.
